SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 12.

THE LANY DAY.

The Registration of voters closes to day. Whistever is to be done in the way of getting out delinquents must be done before sunidown to-day.

Mr. Morrilla's speech in the House of Representatives on Monday, was little more than a summary of the provisions of the new tax bill as it comes from the Ways and Means Committee, and as most of the limportant facts and figures have been published before possesses very little interest, rendered still less from the fact that the bill is likely to be very materially amended before the House gets through with it. Among the facts stated, however, was that the coston tax, raised from two to five cents a pound, is expected to produce a revenue of $44,000,000,000, or an increase over thetax at present emforced of $22,400,000.

This is on the supposition that two million bales will be raised this year subject to the tax, and it is Mr. Morrill's opinion that, notwithstanding the want of good seed and the changed system of labor, the amount will be greater rather than less than this. In regard to the high rates of tax on spirits and malt liquors, which if is not proposed to change, though the revenue commission recommended a reduction and demonstated that thus a larger revenue would be received, Mr. Morrill's opinion that, notwithstanding the want of light rates of tax on spirits and malt liquors, which if is not proposed to change, though the revenue commission recommended a reduction and demonstated that thus a larger revenue would be received, Mr. Morrill's old in the committee whished to have the law of high rates in operation a sufficient of the consumption of intoxicating beverages. Believing the irree theory of interest in the consumption of intoxicating beverages. Believing the irree theory of interest in the consumption, recognising no class for special burdens, a majority, of the local proposed to the consumption, recognising no class for special furgrens, an altority, of the light and the cons us in his Institutes that "the law hath inflicted five punishments upon him that is attained of treason or felony:

1. He shall lose his life, and that by an infamous death of hanging, between heaven and the earth, as unworthy in respect of his offence of either. 2. His wife, that is part of himself, shall lose her dower. 3. His blood is corrupted, and his children cannot be heirs to him, and if he be noble and gentle before, he us in his Institutes that "the law hath and if he be noble and gentle before, he and all his posterity are by this attainand if he be noble and gentle before, he and all his posterity are by this attainder made ignoble. 4. He shall forfeit all his lands and tenements; and fifth, all his goods and chattels." Owing to the corression and assembler injustice.

resulting from this manner of punishment, the framers of our Constitution nade provision by which the rigor of the aniest common law was seriously abated. "The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attained of treason statined."—Constitution, article II, section 2. Congress possesses an hority to prescribe the punishment of treason, but this punishment of the constitution of the con person attained."—Constitution, article II. section 2. Congress possesses antimority to prescribe the punishment of treasan, but this punishment shall not "work corruption of blood or fortelturs, except during the life of the person attained." With these exceptions and limitations the punishment may be as severe, as, in the opinion of Congress, the nature of the crime may warrant or render necessary. This punishment, as prescribed by the very first Congress that was convened under the Constitution of the United States, was death. We give the clause relating to this subject in full hoping that it may meet the gaze of some of our Rabel friends who doubless believe that the legislators of former years were too wise and magnan-mous to make a law defining and punishing freason. "If any person or persons, owing, llegrance to the United States of America, shall levy war "against them, or shall adhere to their "enemies, giving them and and comfort within the United States, or eisses "where, and shall be convicted on confession in open court, or on the testial mony of two wilnesses to the same over act of treason, whereof he or they shall stand indicted, such person or persons shall be adjudged "States, and shall sufer death." (Act 30, April, 1710, section 1.) Treason is here defined and its punishment prescribed. And this, too, not by an abolition or radical Congress, but by a Congress composed of the patriots of the Revolution. Under this law are there not thousands of persons in the United States, to day whose lives have been forfeited and whose liberty is retained only through the magnanimity of the Government?

value as a mode of repression in the consumption of intoxicating beverages. Believing the true theory of iaxation is that no distinctions should be made as to persons in the rates of faxation, recognizing no class for special favors, and creating for no class special burdens, a majority of the committee agreed to make the income tax after this year a uniform one of five per cent, though the loss to the revenue by enting down the rate from 10 per cent for all incomes over $5000, will be $17,000,000. It is also proposed to exempt the first $1000 instead of $600 as now, and if the income tax is to be retained permanently, Mr. Morrill declared that it would used further and forndamental amendments in the future.

The House of Representatives, in committee of the whole, goes into the discussion of the bill with zest, the interest, for a wonder, bringing out a future rate of progress of the sessions already devoted to it, the prospect is not flattering for its early perfection. The cotton tax is the only point yet touched upon, and the committee's report, fixing the tax at five cents a pound in stead of two, as now, has been sustained, in splie of the numerous efforts to amend.

Transon has in all ages been considered the darkest, crime that could be committed by man. To deter men from its commission, and thereby preserve order and stability in the nation, the most rigorous punishments haye been infliced upon those who were guilty of this flagitious offence. Lord Coke tells us in his Institutes that "the law hath used to the country, Ohio, shears one tion. Under this is we are there not thousands of persons in the United States to-day whose lives have been for feited and whose liberty is retained only through the magnanimity of the Government?

A Specimen of the Conservative Style. The La Crosse (Wisconsin) Democratic is a Conservative paper from whose editorials in praise of Jeff. Davis and other prominent rebels we have had occasion at times to quote by way of illustrating the true conservative animus. The following is an extract from the latest effusion of the sditor:

"Say, you radical, nigger loving, Anna Dickinson, Fred. Douglass, Benguise style of Republicans, how do you like Johnson? How do you like Tonnessee statesmanship? How does it compare with flatboat style?
